Rationale:

We believe that marking and feedback should be manageable. Verbal feedback to pupils can be just as valid as written feedback and there is no need for teachers to give evidence of verbal feedback.

We do not require teachers to provide detailed written feedback when they are reviewing pupils' work or acknowledging their efforts.

Evidence collected through book scrutiny exercises, are not used to form judgements about the effectiveness of teachers' practice.

While we implement whole-school policies and systems for marking and feedback, we acknowledge that practice will need to vary according to the age and needs of pupils as well as by subject or area of learning.

Purpose of Marking:

To ensure that all adults have a clear overview of what the child knows, understands and what they have completed either independently or with support such as scaffolding, manipulatives or visual aids.

Informs planning to make sure that the learning is responsive and to track the child's progress.

Marking/Feedback Guidance:

Within our provisions there are numerous opportunities for effective marking and feedback:

- ✓ Written comments on pieces of work in workbooks (Semi-formal and formal learners)
- ✓ Observations made linked to learning experiences within their personal learning journeys (Engagement Model)
- ✓ Constructive comments (oral) during and after practical activities
- All staff are responsible for feedback and marking. Members of staff initial both long and short observations.
- Where photographs are taken as evidence, it is important that a short communication is completed to go alongside it.
- Staff will identify if a child's work was completed independently or with support using an I or S circled under the book. Additional acronyms may be used such as HOH (hand over hand) VP (verbal prompting) or PP (physical prompting)
- Be positive and constructive, and give praise readily to motivate children.
- Verbal feedback should take precedence and be given immediately
- Feedback should be related to ability and attainment.

- Feedback should be related to learning intentions taken from weekly planning, One Plan or EHC targets
- Marking and feedback should be used to inform future planning for personalised learning.

Symbols used in learning journeys and work books:

A circled i next to a piece of work will show that this has been completed independently by the child

A circled s next to a piece of work will show that this has been completed with the support of an adult

A circled hoh next to a piece of work will show that an adult has used hand over hand to support the child

A circled vp next to a piece of work means that a child has been given verbal prompting as a form of support

A circled pp next to a piece of work means that a child has been given physical prompting as a form of support
