

Naughty Elves Spotted in 5L

Wishing it would snow in Becontree? No need to worry
... these sneaky elves have turned 5L into their very own North Pole !

When I walked in this morning, my classroom looked like a winter disaster. The elves were having a full-on snowball fight, but it's not even snowing ... I asked them what they were up to and they said "We missed snow so much, we decided to make our own!"

Apparently, they made snowballs out of paper - but not just any old paper ... they ripped pages out of the English books! “No one likes writing anyway! Truth be told, we’re doing the kids a favour” they exclaimed. The absolute cheek !

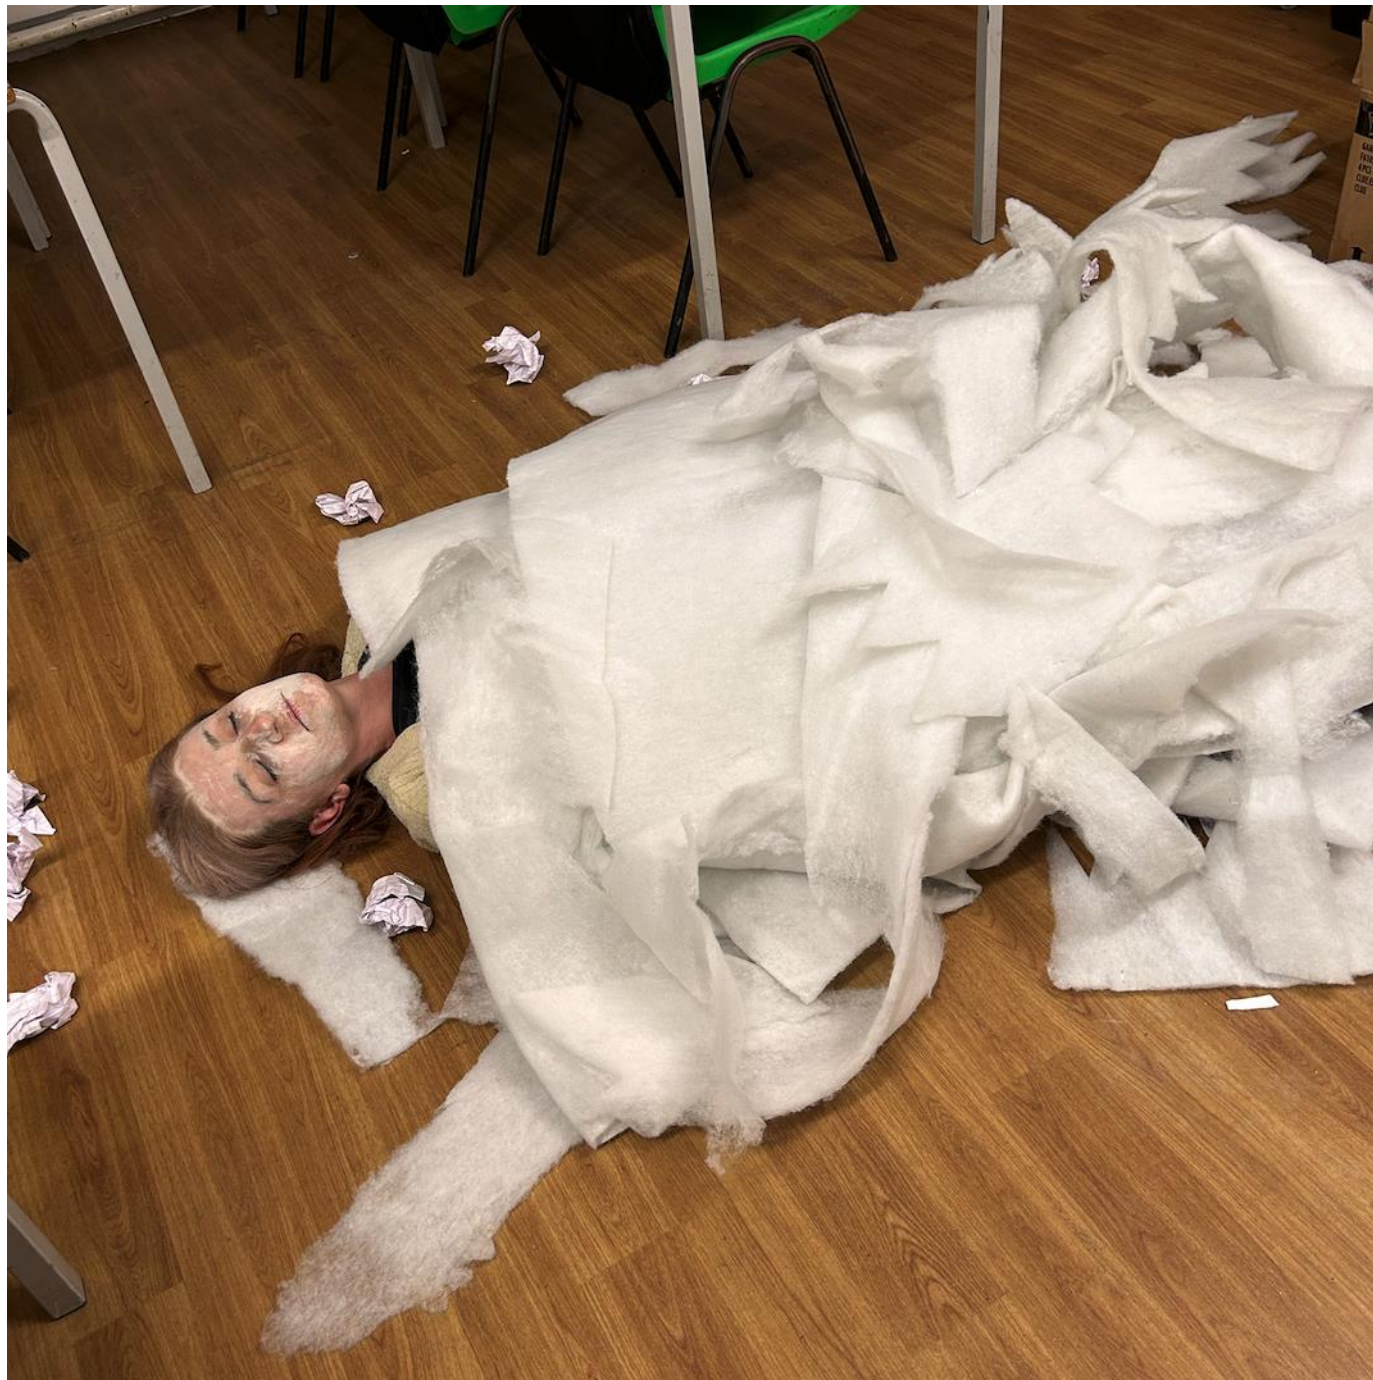

To my horror, they'd also dissected all the plushies and used the fluff to cover the classroom in 'snow.' They even had the nerve to say, "We can make better toys than these." As if!

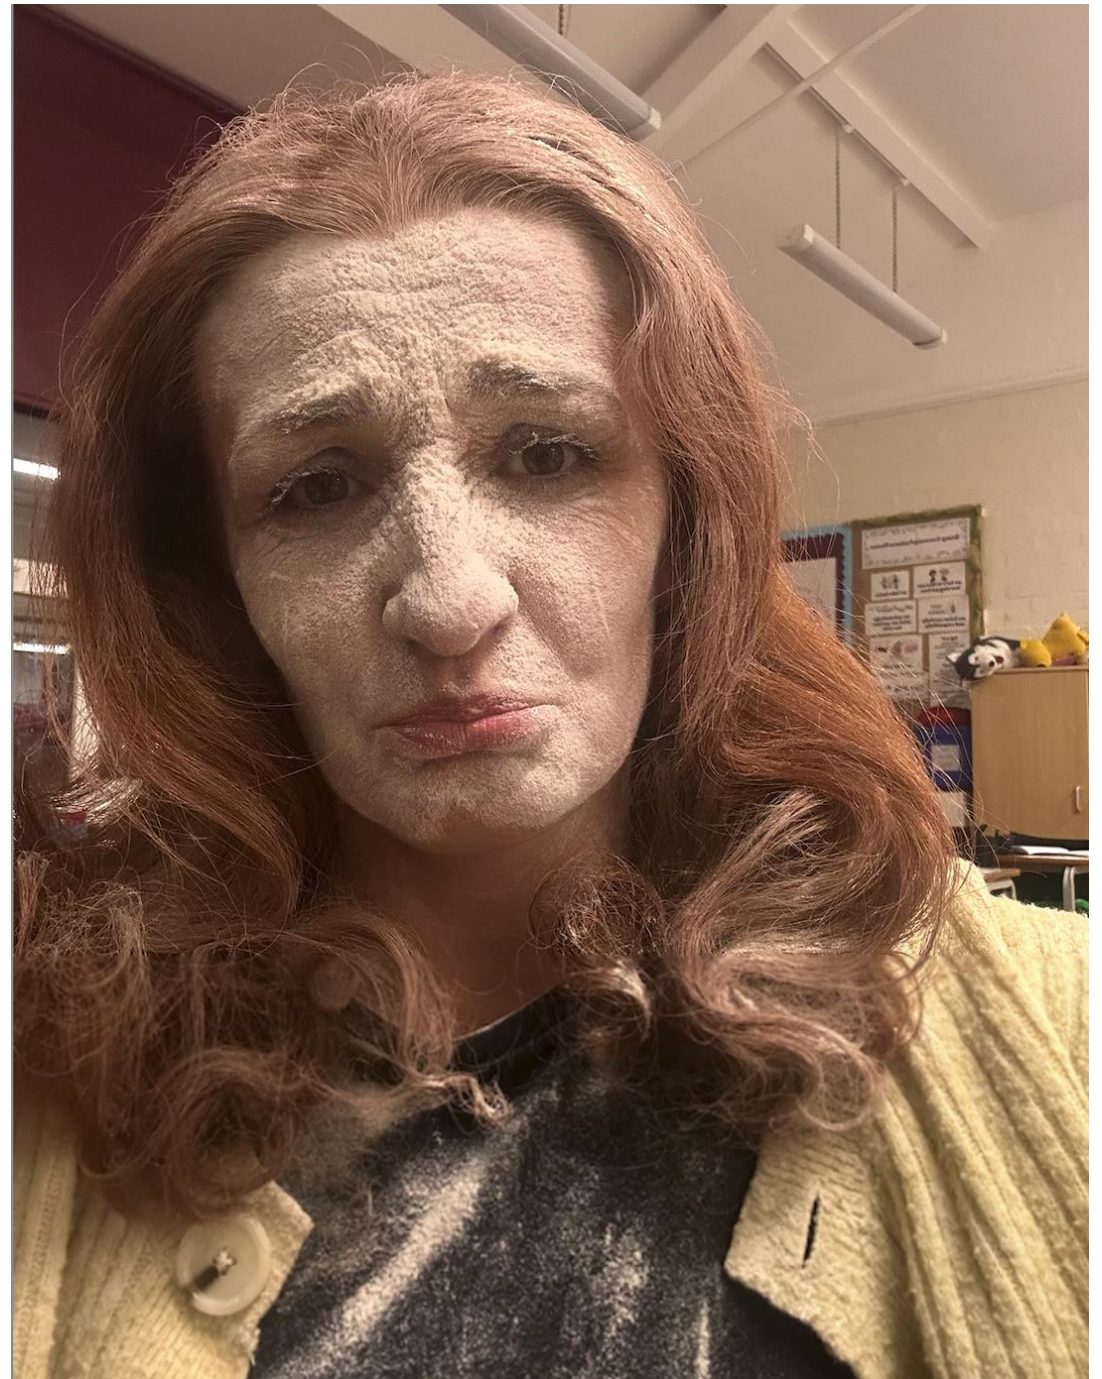

Still not enough fun ... they got bored and decided to pour flour all over the floor and started sliding around everywhere! “Wheeeeeeeee!” they yelled like tiny snow stuntmen.

By this point, I had enough. I started chasing them around the classroom and got my phone out to record their demise. But I got too arrogant and didn't anticipate their attack... the snowballs. In an instant, I was passed out ... Look at what they did to me !

Luckily Mr Allen found me, but he almost didn't recognise me. I wonder why...

Sorry everyone ... I thought I'd be able to catch them but it seems they got the best of me. Clearly they intend to come back for more ... let's start prepping our defences now.
