

The Elves have struck Again!

Do you recognise where this is?

Those naughty elves have been playing in the Junior hall.

They must have been curious about our decorations and glitter ball, as they pulled the large ladders out and climbed all the way to the top!

They were seen hanging from the glitter ball. I'm so relieved that it is not broken...

They were also hanging from the hoop decorations. I had to tie a few bits back up this morning.

We only have a few days left to catch them. They must be stopped before somebody gets hurt or something gets broken!
